

The State of Healthcare Communications

Observations and insights about the intersection of technology, collaboration, and patient-centricity

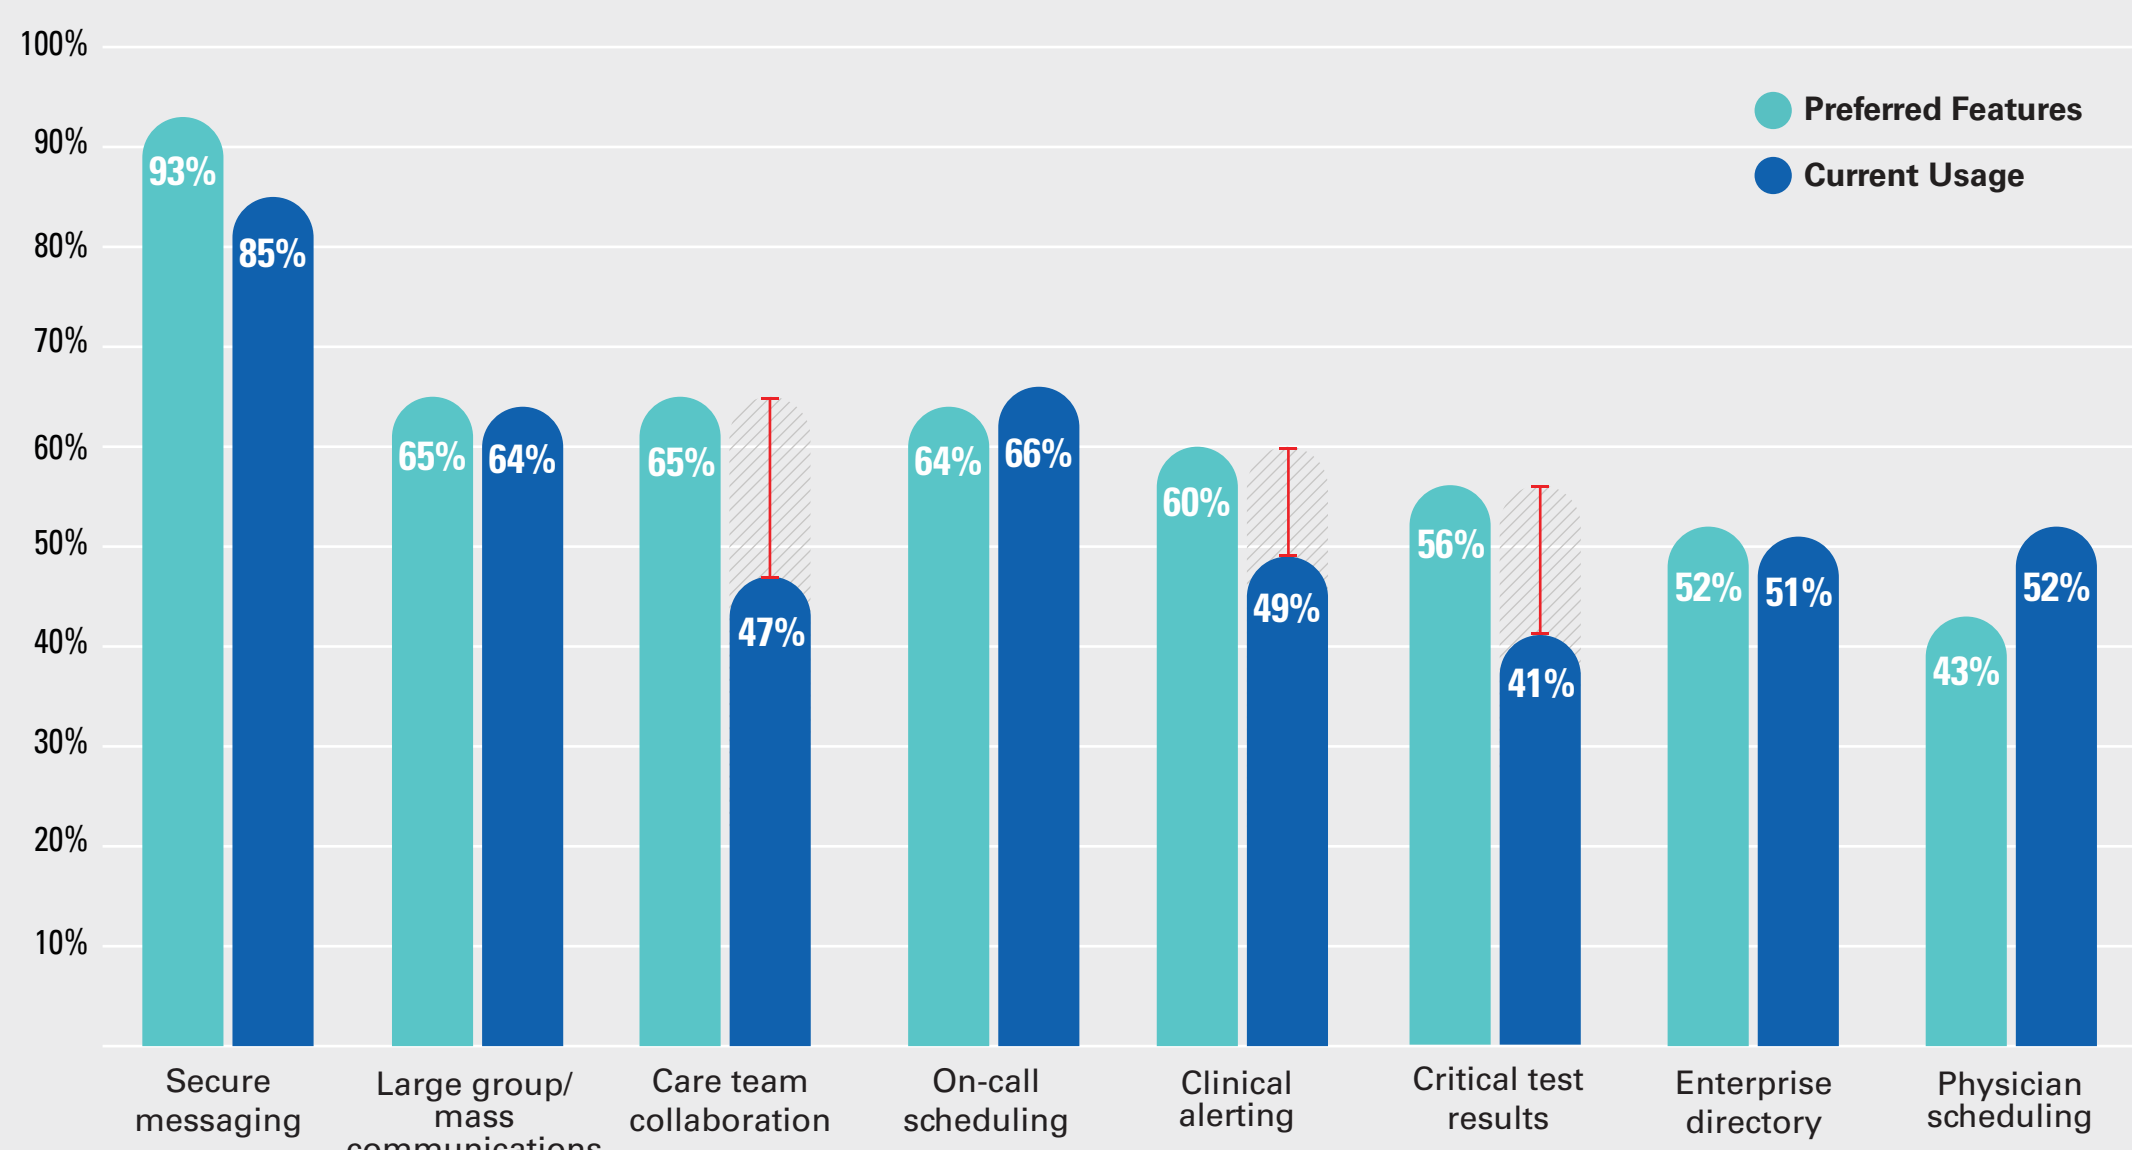

2024 Insights: Communication Challenges
Streamlined cross-team collaboration and communication is highly desired.

What do you perceive are the biggest obstacles to advancing your hospital communications?

For the fifth year in a row, respondents cited budget and resource constraints as the No. 1 obstacle to advancing hospital communications. Consistent with previous years, this obstacle far outranks all others.

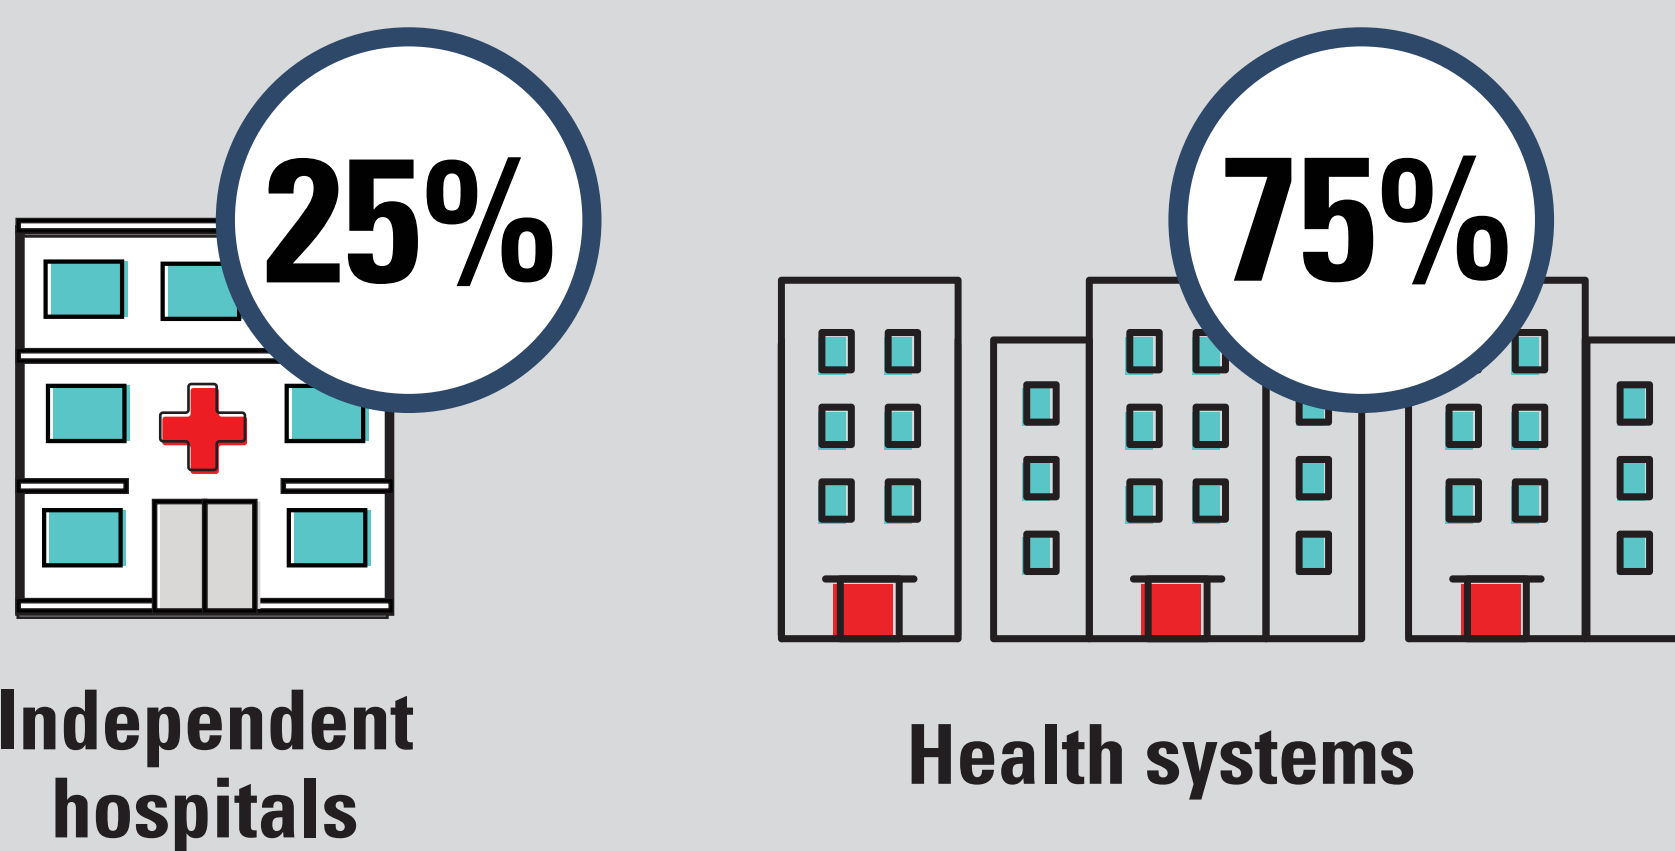

Clinical communication and collaboration (CC&C) platform feature preferences versus the features currently in use

Each feature enables streamlined communication across various teams, allowing everyone to make faster, more informed, and confident decisions. Yet, significant gaps exist between current and preferred capabilities.

About the survey: Organization type

If you have a question about something you read or would like to learn more about how Spok can help advance your clinical communications, please email inforequest@spok.com

Download the entire State of Healthcare Communications Report at spok.com/state-of-healthcare